

11th IMH Research Day

Friday 7th June 2024

The abstract call for this years' IMH Research Day 2024 is open

Are you an early-career researcher, PhD student or Institute doctoral candidate?

To submit an abstract for consideration for this year's IMH Research Day 2024, please complete the online application form, available through the IMH website or scan the QR code below.

The closing date is Tuesday 7th May at 5pm, and the event is taking place at the Institute on Friday 7th June.

The aims are to highlight the work of the Institute's doctoral candidates, Managed Innovation Networks (MINs), and all early-career researchers (including research assistants, research fellows, and research-active clinicians and service users). The event celebrates the breadth of ideas and research work currently taking place within the Institute of Mental Health.

We prioritise those who are affiliated with the Institute of Mental Health, Nottinghamshire Healthcare NHS Foundation Trust and the University of Nottingham when selecting presentations for this event.

More information regarding registration for the event will be released once the abstract call has closed and the programme has been finalised.

This year's IMH Research Day will also take place on the national #Red4Research day, so presenters and attendees are encouraged to support the day and wear something red.

If you have any queries, please contact info@institutemh.org.uk